

THE MICROBIOLOGY AND IMMUNOLOGY DIVERSITY SCHOLARS (MIDS) PROGRAM

Eligibility

- Members of underrepresented racial/ethnic group as defined by the National Institutes of Health
- Completed at least 1 semester of undergraduate coursework
- Have a strong interest in microbiology, immunology, public health, or bioengineering
- Commit 10-15 hrs to research per week

Funding

Stipend covering 10 wks of research during Fall and Spring semesters for 4 semesters

Support for travel to national scientific conferences

When?

Applications Open:

Fall 2023:

Aug 28 - Sept 15

Spring 2024:

Nov 27 - Dec 15

What is the MIDS Program?

This program aims to engage underrepresented minority (URM) undergraduate students in long-term basic, clinical, and/or translational research projects within the School of Medicine Graduate Program in Microbiology and Immunology under the mentorship of experienced researchers and principal investigators.

Interested in scientific research?

Considering a career in biomedical sciences?

The MIDS Program might be for you!

CONTACT US: MIDS_PROGRAM_PITT@GROUPS.PITT.EDU